- The South Course Reopened for Play in Spring 2011: Ground was broken on the 18-month, $10 million project in October 2009, and it became the largest golf course renovation in the country in 2010. More than 200,000 cubic yards of soil were moved, and a total of 478 semi-truckloads of sod were laid everywhere except the greens.
- A new irrigation system with more than 3,000 individually controlled sprinklers and an extensive drainage system was installed, to help maximize playability in all seasons, and all weather conditions.
- The renovated South Course became only the second in the Carolinas to feature Zeon zoysiagrass, which was installed on the fairways, collars and chipping areas
- Because of the added demands from the makeover, Carmel Country Club's annual course maintenance budget was increased by $500,000.
- Carmel was the site of the 2006 U.S. Girls' Junior Championship, and the club is now starting to receive inquiries from the PGA and the USGA about holding bigger events at the property.
